We bring a unique combination of digital service delivery, user engagement, and real-world implementation. Our core strength lies in ensuring that mental health and behavioural interventions are not only designed but effectively adopted, used, and sustained by end users in real-life conditions.

We contribute through:

- deployment of digital and hybrid mental health interventions

Description of the (Research) Team

<https://eraportal.sk/horizont-europa/>

The „ksebe“ team combines expertise in psychology, digital service design, and real-world implementation of behavioural interventions.

The team has hands-on experience with user behaviour in mental health services – including onboarding, engagement, drop-off, and long-term adherence. This allows us to contribute not only to the design of interventions, but also to their successful deployment and sustained use.

A key strength of the team is the ability to translate complex mental health concepts into accessible, user-centered solutions that work outside controlled research environments.

Expertise of the Team Leader

The team leadership combines expertise in psychology, mental health service development, strategic coordination, and implementation of innovative support models. The leadership has practical experience with building psychological services, ensuring expert quality, and connecting professional mental health care with real user needs and sustainable operational models.

A strong advantage is the ability to bridge the clinical, organizational, and innovation perspective, and to contribute not only conceptually but also in practical deployment, stakeholder communication, and dissemination.
